“I think it would be awesome to become a teacher teaching in Alaska. It seems hard, yet fun and a rewarding experience working with young kids. One of the things that inspired me was working my little nephews and nieces! They have taught me some leadership skills and to be patient while working with kids.”

“I want to become a teacher so I can teach and hopefully be a role-model to my future students. I think it helps students if their teacher can connect with them. One way I would connect with others is knowing what its like to grow up in a village.”

“I would like to become a teacher because I like to teach and help other kids out. Another reason I would like to become a teacher because I like to learn!”

The Year of Miss Agnes

“The Year of Miss Agnes” is a very interesting book. It takes place in central Alaska in the early 1940’s. The book is mainly about a teacher moving up to Alaska and teaching in a small village. In this book it tells that teaching isn’t easy, but it in the end it can be exciting and rewarding.
